THE DEBATE ON CROWN LANDS. WHILE upon the two propositions, that the administration of our public lands ought to be vested in the colonial legislature, and that the minimum price of twenty shillings per acre is far above their average value, the colonists of New South Wales are nearly unanimous; yet upon the question as to the way in which those lands may be most equitably and advan-tageously disposed of, with reference to the joint interests of the empire and the colony, and to permanent as distinguished from temporary benefits, there is, it must confessed, a wide if not an irrecon cilable difference.

To digress for a moment, we would remark, that the very fact that the question so difficult as to cause such a diversity of opinion even amongst those who are best acquainted with its practical bearings, supplies a strong argument why neither the Imperial Parliament nor the Imperial Government should presume to attempt its solution. If so perplexing to those who have the lights of local knowledge and experience to guide them, and whose minds have been long inently occupied with its examination, how nextricable must be its entanglements to those who grope in the dark, and who have bestowed upon the subject but a passing and a listless thought! The chances are, that the decisions of the colonial legislature, adopted the more cau-tiously by reason of the discussions to which Within the boundaries . 448,270 2,252,712 Without the boundaries . 899,752 4,606,319 ce of opinion must give rise, would

The tenure upon which this large and rapidly increasing property is held—or, which is the same in effect, the tenure of the land upon which the stock is depastured—is the most insecure that can be imagined. It is neither freehold, nor copyhold, nor leasehold; but a species of tenancy at will. It consists of an annual license from the Crown, of which the Crown is not only at liberty to refuse the renewal, but which it may revoke at any momen, and with unlimited exactions and with unlimited exactions and the stock is depasting to those of the lower orders who have neglected vaccination of their children; to make arrangement of the colony, by corresponding with the medical mer supplying them with lynuph as they require it, an assing their assistance to keep up a supply, each in honored do not make transmit it.

Crown and the squatter is not so much that of landlord and tenant, as that of signior and villain. The Crown has none of the checks which competition imposes upon one landlord amongst many; it wields over these ultramontane territories an absolute monopoly.

This is an acknowledged, an indisputable, an enormous evil. deeper.
Where lies the remedy? Aye-"that must is the question :" the question that must "give us pause." There would seem to be but one alternative—either to sell the land, or to lease it for a term of years. At the present statutory price, selling to any extent is question; and on the assumption that this price would not be reduced, leasing had been treated as the sole remaining expedient. The assumption has been universal. That the only alteration that could ever take place would be a raising of the price, has been assumed by the squatters, by their fellow-colonists, and by the colonial government; because it had been assumed by Act of Parliament Therefore, the leasehold system has been approved by all parties, as the only means of bursting the trammels of the yearly license system. Of Sir George Gipps's unnatural and abortive scheme for amulcompating freehold and leasehold, by reing the purchase of homesteads at the twenty shilling minimum, we shall not at present stop to speak. But within the last few weeks, new light has broken in upon the whole sub-ject. The spell in which the unalienated lands were supposed to be bound, has been dissolved. Lord STANLEY'S Act is no longer to be regarded as the law of the Medes and Persians. We have the authority of Mr. GLADSTONE for the assertion. that if found injurious to the colony, it will be repealed. The Governor submits to the Legislative Council a copy of a letter (18th September, 1846.) addressed to the Honorable the Colonial Secretary by the Principal Medical Officer, representing the necessity of establishing a Vac-eine Institution in this colony.

The reasons which, in the opinion of the Principal Medical Officer, render the establish-ment of an institution of this nature desirable, are so forcible that the Governor does not deem it necessary to offer any observations on the subject; but he has aunexed to the message an estimate (No. 2) of the probable annual expenditure of maintaining a Vaccine Institution in Sydney, in case the Council should consider the proposal worthy of their favourable attention.

CUSTOMS ACT AMENDMENT BILL. The Council went into Committee for the further consideration of the above Bill, upon the motion of the COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Upon the consideration of the second clause. a question arose as to the limits within which ressels recognised as coasters should trade, and in the course of the conversation which en-vessels recognised as coasters should trade, and in the course of the conversation which ensued it was suggested that the boundaries should be so defined as to exclude the proposed new colony of North Australia.

Mr. WINDEYER objected to this as extremely inconvenient. Many of the settlers had already located themselves beyond the proposed limits, and received their supplies at Wide Bay, or other ports to the northward, sending their wool in resum, and it would be very hard if the vessels through the medium of which this was done were to be considered as foreign traders. It did not follow also that the new settlement in the north would be a distinct colony, in the strict sense of the term, so as to require that the vessels trading from thence should cease to be regarded as coasters.

The COLONIAL SECRETARY stated that any new colony which might be founded by any new colony which might be founded by Her Majesty must be strictly a separate colony any new colony which might be founded by Her Majesty must be strictly a separate colony from New South Wales, for it was only by erecting a distinct colony that Her Majesty could exercise the power conferred upon her in this behalf by the imperial Legislature, and although the officer at the head of the Government might be placed under the supervision of the Governor of New South Wales, it would be necessary to create a distinct colonial legislature, who might make such provisions with regard to the trade of the colony as they thought fit, so that that House would have no legislative control beyond the limits of New South Wales. He had had occasion to look into this subject before with reference to his own official duties, and he had ascertained that no part of the Government business of the northern colony was to be transacted through his office.

Mr. WINDEYER suggested that no injury could accrue from continuing to regard as coasters the vessels which traded to the northward, until different arrangements might be made by the Leisley was to the sentence of the morthward, until different arrangements might be made by the Leisley was to the sentence of the morthward, until different arrangements might be made by the Leisley was to the sentence of the morthward, until different arrangements might be made above the Leisley was to the sentence of the morthward.

northward, until different arrangements might be made by the Legislature of the new colony, but that on the other hand they might occasion considerable inconvenience by neglecting to make such a provision.

After some further discussion this suggestion was accorded to and it was desided as tion was secreded to, and it was decided the all vessels trading between Cape Capricorn and the eastern limits of South Australia should be regarded as coasters.

The COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS proposed an additional clause to stand as the twelfth clause of the Bill, which provided that all penalties might be sued for in any Court of Record or in the Court of Vice-Admiralty, and that in cases where the penalty did not exceed £100 the same might be recovered summarily before two or more Justices of the

to be the judge of that Court, the House might fairly say that it possessed no more confidence in him than in any other member of the benches of magistrates, and as the jurisdiction of these benches was limited to £100, it would be an innovation upon the principle which induced this limit to allow the Crown to which induced this limit to allow the Crown to see for any sum, however large, before a tribunal in which the question at issue would have to be decided by a single person, chear, hear). Another reason for striking out this part of the clause was, the Court alluded to proceeded not upon their own law, but upon a law wholly different, and had the most ridiculous mode of taking evidence that was ever devised. Courts of Vice Admirally were in great disrepute, and deservedly so, for the history of colonization went to show that when unhappily any disputes arose between the Crown and its subjects, these Courts with their strange laws and modes of proceeding were ready instruments of oppression in the hands of the former, (hear, hear).

The COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS consented to withdraw from the clause the power ingry or lengthened discussion; but as the point was of some importance, and would form a precedent on future occasions, he had deemed it right to direct the attention of the Committee to it.

Mr. WINDEYER was of opinion that neither the Governor's instructions nor the Despatch implied anything which could hinder the House from doing as it liked with a thing of its own creation. The Crown could have no right to a revenue which did not exist, and no right to a revenue which did not exist, and as these penalties had no existence until they were created by the House, the latter has surely the power of dealing with them after they were called into being. He would rather that the Bill should be reserved, or that it should be disallowed altogether, than that the Bill should be abandoned; but he apprehended that His Excellency would feel no difficulty in assenting to the Bill, as the late Governor, although so great a stickler for prerogative, had assented to many measures containing clauses in which the moiety of penalties was directed to go to, the Colonial Treasurer for the public uses of the colony. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. LOWE was of opinion that no construction could be placed on the thirteenth clause as printed, to render it an illegal one. The Constitutional Act said that all moneys raised for the public service should be example.

thought fit, of witholding the means by which they were raised.

Mr. WINDEYER remarked that the difficulty alluded to by the Colonial Secretary had been met by the honorable and learned member for Sydney, in the argument that even supposing the right of appropriation to belong wholly to the Queen, Her Majesty had abandoned it.

wholly to the Queen, Her Majesty had abandoned it.

The COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS said, that as the clause was one which had excited so much opposition, he should ask leave for the present to postpone it.

The House then resumed, and the Committee having reported progress, obtained leave to sit again on Wednesday next.

Mr. COWPER seconded the motion, and hoped in the meantime the Government would find that it would be advisable to forego the provisions of the present law, and to comply with the prayer of the petition he had presented to the House. What the petitioners objected to was, that the Government should have any property in the wharf, and they prayed that such a system might be done away with, and the price of wharfage left to fair competition. If such a system were adopted, and the Circular Quay leased to orivate parties, the petitioners Mr. COWPER seconded the motion, and hoped in the meantime the Government would find that it would be advisable to forego the provisions of the present law, and to comply with the prayer of the petition he had presented to the House. What the petitioners objected to was, that the Government should have any property in the wharf, and they prayed that such a system might be done away with, and the price of wharfage left to fair competition. If such a system were adopted, and the Circular Quay leased to private parties, the petitioners would not complain of any maximum rate or tax that might be laid upon wharfage.

The motion was then acceded to and the Bill postponed.

Bill postponed. SYDNEY CORPORATION BILL The COLONIAL SECRETARY moved the The COLONIAL SECRETARY moved the second reading of the Act for suspending the 70th section of the Sydney Incorporation Act. The object of the Bill was simply to relieve the Corporation of Sydney from the necessity of levying a rate for police purposes. It was in fact a Bill precisely the same as that which had been introduced into the House on the last session, and similar to that which had been summarily before two or more Justices of the Peace.

Mr. WINDEYER proposed that the power of suing in the Court of Vice Admiralty should be expunged. A sum of £190 5s. Sd. was voted for pos-tage, stationery, and incidental expenses. A sum of £73 having been proposed for the forage of two horses for the Commissioner of Police, the Committee divided upon the propo-sition, with the following result:—

He would therefore move as an amendment, that the item be omitted from the estimates.

Mr. BLAND was of opinion, that as this system had been acted upon since the time of Sir Richard Bourke, and as the most important public works of the colony had been constructed by those means, the sum ought to be voted. He also thought that great advantages in the carrying on of public works were to be derived from the presence of convicts.

Mr. LAMB supported the amendment, expressing his opinion that the presence of convicts was a curse rather than an advantage, and that as a rumour existed that transportation might be revived, it behoved the House to refrain from voting any sums which were properly chargeable on the military cheet.

Captain O'CONNELL supported the original motion, contending that in the present state of the labour market it would be impossible to carry on these works by any other means, although he concurred in what had been said as to the presence of contists being a disadvantage.

No. 3 Summary of the Report presented to the said public meeting by Mr. Thomas Worze.

Colonial Secretary's Office, Sydney, 17th September, 1846.

Sir.—I do myself the honour to inform you, that the Governor has laid before the Executive Moundi your letter of the 19th ultimo, as Chairman of the departation which waited upon His Excellency on the August last, for the purpose of saccratining to what extent the Government would be disposed to assist in the introduction of Rallways into the colony.

The assistance asked for in your communication is, an appropriation out of the public funds of a sum of 50 0 money equal to the amount raised by private subscription, of the purpose of surveying the lines connecting Sydney with Goulburn and with the Hawkesbury and Nepean Rivers; and I am directed to state to you, that the Council were of opinion that the object in question was one towards the carrying out of which pecuniary assistance might be granted out of the Crown Land Revenue, under the authority of the Land Sales Act, 5 and 6 Victoria, c. 36.

The Council, however, were not prepared to recommend that the Government should, in this instance, pledge itself to the payment of any larger sum than Five Hundred Pounds; but subject to this limitation, they advised that there should be granted out of the Crown Land Revenue a sum equal to the amount raised by private contributions, for the purpose of surveying the lines mentioned in your letter. The Council also expressed their opinion, that the disposal of the money so granted should be left to the parties interested, on condition that proper vouchers be readered by them, to show that both the amount raised by ubscription, and the corresponding amount contributed by the Govern ment, have been duly expended on the object proposed.

I am farther directed to inform you, that His Excellency has much pleasure in approving the recommen-posed.

I am farther directed to inform you, that His Excellency has much pleasure in approving the recommendation of the Council; and that instructions will be given for the issue of the money as soon as the arrange ments of the Railway Committee are sufficiently advanced to require it.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

Charles Nicholson, Ess., FLOWER SHOW.

YESTERDAY the Spring Exhibition of the Australian Floral and Horticultural Society took place in the Market-shed A. The weather was remarkably favourable, and in consequence the number of visitors to Sydney on the occasion was very considerable. The Market-shed was decorated with evergreens and flowers with very great taste, and much credit is due to Mr. Kidd, the Superintendent of the Government Gardens, and Mr. William Waterman, the overseer of the same establishment, for the pains taken by them on this occasion to render the exhibition of the Society attractive. We rejoice to say that a larger and more fashionable attendance of visitors was attracted to the exhibition than we have seen for several years, and we trust that this may form but another symptom of that recovery from the late heavy depression of the colony, which has had but too perceptible an effect on the scientific, as well as the social, progression of the community. The flower show was attraced to the exhibition was of a very fair description, not withstanding the dryness of the season had prevented that forward state of vegetation which might have been expected.
